

THE WAYWARD CHILD.

By Rev. S. Trevena Jackson.

CHAPTER III.—MY FAMILIAR FRIENDS.
Narrative Related in Walsingham M. E.
Church on Sunday Evening, Nov. 18.

"Alone I sat and listened Till my heart-strings bled."
"No man gave unto him."
"Hearing my mother say, I must go awoke within my life a sense of my utter loneliness. I was alone in the world.
I could not bear the thought, so I struggled to catch the hem of her garments, but as I touched them I heard a voice saying, 'Touch her not, thou art unclean'; thy filthy robes are stained with sin, and thou art unclean.' I started then.
Back, back; I fled, I fled, I fled. I saw my mother's face turned toward mine.
I pleaded, 'Oh, mother, leave me not; you were the friend of my youth. My guardian angel in my waywardness, leave me not, nor forsake me in my helplessness.'
"Oh, mother! I am without God in the world. I am alone and forsaken, lost and forsaken. My familiar friends in whom I trusted have fled. My dear mother, it's an awful thing to be in this world friendless—when one has sown the seed and is reaping what he has sown."

"I was borne by some unknown power far above the clouds, within sight of a mount called the Hill of Instruction.
Here one said to me, 'Suffering has caused you to be sad. You listened not to the voice of home. You regarded not the fiercer ties that link the soul of the child to its parents. You have come to what you never should have come to, and you have yourself to blame. Note:
'Pride goeth before a fall.' He that beings often reproved and hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy. My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother,' were given to thy youth."

"Every once in awhile I caught the glimpse of a smile. I knew it came from my mother's face, for I was struggling to throw off my garments of pain.
I cried, 'O, that I had my days to go over again! I'd never do as I have done.
Can I reach the Mount of Purity once again? Can I, can I, come back to God?' In my agony I thought I heard music, sweetest harpings with their harps.
Then many voices singing, 'Unto Him who hath loved us and loosed us from our sins in His own blood, and hath made us kings and queens unto God and His Father; to Him be glory and dominion forever and ever.'"

"Then there came to me one with a prophet's face and said, 'Child of Israel!
God, His Son, and the angelic host of heaven are deeply concerned in thy fare of earth. Heaven seeks to bring the kingdom of God into the lives of men. But they will not. A bit of business, a day of pleasure, the call of the company, hath turned your feet away from God.'"

"With very much fear and dread I asked, 'Why hath God brought me to this?
Why must I suffer thus alone?'
"My child, the prophet spoke, 'place not the blame of thy suffering at the door of thy parents or their God. God has done all that heaven could do for the safety and salvation of man. But service among people, I was one of Israel's children reduced so low as to long for the pods of the carob tree, and no man gave unto me. But I said, 'I will use them.' I sat thinking while the swine were feeding. I was disgraced to work at home, and with my
to make me a hired servant. Set me to work, keep me to work. To get back to Joppa was the difficulty, but I could work, I thought."

"In the evening twilight I sat beneath a cedar, and saw the old home, come before me as real as ever, and I heard father's voice across the waters: 'My child, come home. You are weary at heart.' Then I heard my mother, 'Son, you are still his child; he is waiting for you. Go home—go home. You have seen a new plan of salvation. Let the name of Jesus, which is put in your life,' "Simon and Dorcas breathed their blessing upon my life, and gave me their best wishes and prayers for my safe return to my father's house. The anchor was lifted, the sails were set, the weather was fair, and I, the lost son, was working my way toward my father's house."

"W. C. T. U. Plans.
The local branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon and discussed a plan to donate to the town one large fountain or several small ones, to be erected in various parts of the municipality. In view of the fact that there is one large fountain in the business centre the advisability of erecting small ones was thought to be the better plan, and this idea will be submitted to the Council soon after January 1. It was decided to place boxes in the firehouses, police station and the depot, in which temperance literature will be placed. Gospel temperance meetings will be held Sunday nights in the Glenwood Avenue Mission.
If arrangements can be made. Reports from the world's convention held in Boston, and the national convention held at Hartford were read."

"The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send wretchedness, but ye would not. Come unto Me and I will give you rest."

"As Christ left I awoke and heard a voice asking: 'Is he better, doctor?' I think the worst is over; with care he will pull through, but be sure and keep him still." Realizing myself I saw I was in a strange house, surrounded by strangers. I wanted to know where I was, but I was ordered to keep quiet. I soon learned the day my angel mother left was the Sabbath day. On Tuesday I was found almost dead on the bank of the river by a Christian disciple, who was one of a crew who sailed from Tarshish to Joppa and Tyre. At the latter place he heard the story from one Simon a tanner concerning Jesus and the resurrection. On the seashore they met for prayer and Christian counsel, and sought to follow the Master in doing good either to Jew or Gentile."

"I had grown quite strong, and Simon sitting beside me said: 'I think you are able now to hear the story of your resurrection. We found you on the banks of the river helpless and ready to die. I sent for a physician, but he did not care to bother with what he called the 'do no harm' rule. So my wife knew a young disciple whose name was Luke, and had been in the school of the Master. My wife hurried for him. It was late when she arrived with him. He gave you one searching glance, threw off his mantle, rolled up his sleeve, and worked I never saw the like of it. He toiled 'till great drops of perspiration hung on his brow, and when he saw signs of respiration his face brightened. He smiled and said: 'I think we have won him back to life.' I missed my wife, and when I found her, she was on the top of the house pleading with a mother's heart for your recovery. The doctor remained all night—and we held such sweet counsel concerning the Master!—for the physician knew Him, and was writing the story of His life and works. And that night he read to us: 'A certain man had two sons, and the younger of them took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.' But I inquired, did the boy go home? Then he told me the story of how he went to work. And there he stated to me a new plan of salvation, for redemption, and for all others like myself. He stated: 'The boy went to work, for there is no salvation from drink for the unemployed. He must be at work. This boy went to do themselves among the Jewish people, and he did it. Rather than be an idler any longer he would feed swine. One thought of the Master was, 'I must work.' And if you are to be redeemed from the power of the wine cup, you must have your mind engaged upon something else but the wine cup. You must be so engaged that you have no time to get it. Never despair work, my child. Little better ever came to mortal.
It bears the touch of health, and your salvation is in its plans.'"

"I left that house resolved to go to work, and if there was redemption in it for me I would have it. I had fixed my mind. One place, they said, I was not able to work. Another, I was one of the 'navar-do-well.' A third, they never employed any one they knew nothing about. I was weak and sad, but I had set my mind on work, and I would get it; it was my salvation, for the old desires were not dead. I came so closely to a citizen that he gave me the lowest social position among people. I was one of
will use them.' I sat thinking while

To Brew the Best Beer the brewer must first have make or buy perfect Malt, for malt is the soul of the beer.
Four-day malt cannot make perfect beer such as

Pabst Blue Ribbon
because four-day malt is a forced and unnatural process and beer made from four-day malt lacks the nutritious food elements which distinguish Pabst Beer.

Pabst exclusive eight-day malt, the choicest hops, pure water and a process spotlessly clean are the secret of the rich food value and the fine mellow flavor of Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer.

Kingsfishers as Weathercocks.
There is a very quaint old world superstition in connection with the kingfisher, which I fancy still obtains here and there in remote parts of the country. The superstition is this:
If a stuffed or dried kingfisher be suspended by a thread or string from the beam or ceiling of a room, its breast will always turn in the direction of the prevailing wind. How the notion first arose and how, in the light of common sense and inquiry, it has been so long perpetuated it is hard to say, but it has long existed and still exists. I have a clear recollection as a youngster of going into a humble cottage in the shires and seeing a stuffed kingfisher thus suspended as a weather vane.—Country Life.

Japanese Finger Napkins.
The Japanese have a picturesque improvement on finger bowls. At the conclusion of the repast a tiny basket, woven of exquisite straw and in ornamental design, is placed before each guest. This basket contains a filmy, satin, paper napkin, printed with apple blossoms, chrysanthemums, lilies or some other attractive design, and twisted lightly into a flower-like shape.
Before being placed in the basket the napkin has been slightly dampened with perfumed water, the scent corresponding with the design, and this napkin the guest uses instead of dipping the hands in water.

Charles V. Liked Mechanisms.
Charles V. of Spain, like Louis XVI. of France, was particularly fond of timepieces and had a decided taste for mechanics. When in Germany he invented a carriage for his own accommodation and after his abdication he would amuse himself in making little puppets—soldiers performing their exercises, girls dancing with their tambourines and little wooden birds that would fly in and out of the window.

A Reasonable Request.
"Pa, Uncle James has given me his steamer trunk."
"Well, what of it?"
"Now, pa, don't be peevish. Couldn't you give me a trip to Europe to sort of round out Uncle James' present?"

Too Late.
"And you didn't propose to her?"
"No."
"Why?"
"I was leading up to it, but suddenly noted that her voice had a sort of previous engagement ring."—Smart Set.

Blended—Not "Mixed" Hotel Astor Coffee is the exact blend that years of experiment has shown to produce the richest, smoothest, finest flavored coffee.
Those who have been buying "mixtures" represented to be "Mocha and Java" under the impression that they were getting the best coffee, will be delighted and astonished by the flavor, price and economy of

HOTEL ASTOR COFFEE

In order that its full strength and delicious flavor may reach the consumer unimpaired, it is always sealed in air-tight tins, immediately after roasting. Never sold in bulk.
Most delicious because none of its flavor has been lost by exposure to the air. Most economical because its thorough roasting and full strength permits the use of a less quantity.
Originally blended for the use of the Hotel Astor, in New York, where it is served exclusively. The famous Hotel Astor recipe is in every tin. Try it and appreciate your privilege.
Hotel Astor Coffee is sold invariably in sealed tins at 50c per pound.
